It's the wrapper sensation of the year! It is the biggest opportunity you have ever been offered! Scarcely anybody is buying less than three wrappers, because there isn't any in the lot which are not $1.50 and to give you an idea of what the better ones are worth, you can judge when you know that Michael Cooper made no wrapper to sell for less than $12 a dozen at wholesale and some of these he had been selling for as high as $30.

You have the choice of Lawns, Percales and Batistesmost elegantly trimmed garments; with ruffles at bottom of skirt and over shoulder; with fullest skirts-and separate waist-linings.

The selling that has been going on here the past three days if continued a while longer will clear them out in a day or so, so that if you have any idea of coming for them, come at once.

We're "charging" purchases same as though you were paying what these wrappers were worth.

ses no time in working his bunco game The scheme he employs and has fo lox-ed here with some degree of success is to sell a piece of cloth to the mistress of the which is not exactly what he says it is. His goods are always of the finest texture and he allows his victims to ex-amine them and test them as much as they care to. He generally tells the per-son to whom he wishes to sell the goods that he has received the piece from John Wanamaker, or some other well-known dry goods merchant, and, after receiving, has decided not to take it. He protests that he could not very well send it back to the merchant and would like to dispose of it at discount. pose of it at discount.

In one instance he displayed a piece of cloth he claimed contained ten yards which really sold for about $2 per yard. This piece he offered for $7.50, apparently making a very liberal discount. His story is told in such a straightforward manner that he has no difficulty in disposing of his wares, and it is long after he has gone that the person who purchased the cloth finds that the piece contains about one-fourth the quantity he claimed, thus making its true value less than was paid for it. In most cases the piece is double-width and the fraud is not discovered for some time. How long he has worked the game in this city no one seems to know, but it is not thought he has been here for a great while. The police are on the lookout for him.

ACCUSED OF GREAT CRUELTY.

Mary K. Perry Regins an Action fo Divorce.

Mary Kate Perry, though her counsel Laskey & Thompson, today filed a ped-Walter Perry, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment as the grounds. In her complaint Mrs. Perry states that before and since the 18th day of last Fch.uary and since the 18th day of last Feb.uary her husband has repeatedly abused herself and her children to such an extent as to make it impossible for them to live with him, and as a result she and her children were obliged to go to live with her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Godey.

Accompanying the petition of the plaintiff is the affidavit of her sister, Emma L. Godey, also testifying to the ill-treatment of Mrs. Perry and her children.

On motion of Mr. Laskey Justice Co'e issued an order restraining the defendant, John Walter Perry, from annoying or in anyway interfering with the petitioner and her children.

Standard Tailors' New Store.

To meet the demands of are increasing business, the Standard Tailors have spened a new store at 917 Pennsylvania Avenue, in addition to the one already established at the corner of Eleventh and F Streets. Today was the first of the opening of the new store, and judging from the numerous callers who impected their goods, there is every reason to believe that the venture will prove a prosperous one. The Standard failors do not deal in ready-made clothing, but fill all their orders with garments made by their own tailors. They still occupy the entire building at the corner of Eleventh and F Streets, the greater part being used for the manufacture of the goods gold in their stores. The manufacture of clothing, as carried on by this company, is probably the largest industry of its character is the South, and employs many men. An additional reason for the opening of the new store was to reach a class of patroasge that does not pass the store on F Street. Standard Tailors' New Store.

Major General Chaffee Defends Army Retions.

Gen. A. K. Arnold Relates His Ex-

Refrigerated Meat Was Tainted.

Major General Chaffee appeared before the Beef Court of Enquiry today.

His testimony was very much like that of General Shafter, who appeared before the court yesterday.

The first witness of the day was Cch. A. K. Arnold, who commanded the second division of the Seventh Army Corps. He testified that at Jacksonville, the potatoes were not good, the onlong were not good, and many complaints were made to him that the refrigerated beef was tainted. He had on his staff an inspector, a medical officer, and a commissary the inspector made his daily rounds looking in upon the company kitchens and the preparations of food. The commissary had specific instructions to examine the beef. Their reports were in the main favorable. During ports were in the main favorable. During the first two months at Jacksonville the health of the command was good, but the health after that period rapidly deteriorat-health of the command was good, but the health after that period rapidly deteriorated, typhold fever becoming prevalent.

He attributed the sickness mainly to the method of disposing of camp refuse. The witness recalled Lieutenant Colonel Currie. He detailed this officer to construct a rife range for the division. He was occupied in this work about one month. This officer was selected because of his peculiar fitness for this duty. The men were detailed from the various regiments in this camp. They went to the range dally. The witness said he may have had conferences with Colonel Currie on the subject of the food supply. He could not recall that Colonel Currie ever spoke to him about the chemicalization of beef. The witness never had occasion to suspect that the beef was chemically treated. The beef was drawn from the refrigerator cars at Jacksonville by commissaries, hauled to the camp, and turned over to the regimental commisaries. Colonel Currie continued in charge of the rifle practice till he went on leave of absence. He recalled that Colonel Currie had at one time reported that a large percentage of the detail was sick.

Colonel Currie's Evidence. Colonel Currie's Evidence.

Colonel Currie, who is a physician prac ticing at Englewood, N. J., appeared before the Beef Court a few days ago, and estified that upon analysis of the so-called refrigerated beef at Jacksonville he had found borie and salicylic acid. The res-timony of General Arnold, though it was not strongly corroborative of that of Col-onel Currie, did not contradict or weaken Dr. Currie's evidence.

General Chaffee was the next witness. He gave his present station as Havana. General Chaffee narrated his services at Chickamauga and Tampa. He went to Cuba on the Iroquois. On the voyage his command used roast canned beef. No his command used roast canned beef. No complaint was made, that he heard. He complaint was made, that he heard. He required his company commanders to be present at every mess. No complaint was made. After landing in Cuba his men to:k three days' ration of bacon. Later some of the so-called canned roast beef was issued, though, in the main, his command ate bacon. He ate canned roast beef but once. He did not hear a solitary complaint in his command that the beef was unfit to eat. His personal opinion of that which he ate was that it was unpalatable, it being too fresh; that is, it was without

He remonstrated with his medical officers, and insisted that they were doing a great injustice to the men, as they need-ed a change of diet from salt and canned

The colonel of one regiment refused to approve the findings of the board of survey, ordered the meat cooked, and it was Canned Roast Beef. He had never suspected that the beet had been chemically treated. He did not believe now that it had been.

There was a great deal of sicknes mong the men. Their stomachs were out among the men. Their stomachs were out of condition and they suffered from fever.

At present canned roast beef was issued to the destitute Cubans. As in the case with nearly all canned goods, there was a certain percentage of "swellers" or bulged cans. This was due to fermentation which had been made possible by reason of imperfect canning or an accidental puncture of the care. of the can.

He recalled on one occasion that 10,000 cans were thrown into the sea, but he was positive that this had been done without proper inspection. The cases would be thrown overboard without being opened. Frequently he had found one can in a case bad and twenty-three cans good. Though this one defective can would scent the whole case, yet the contents of the remaining cans might be pure and sweet. Under cross-examination by Major Lee, the witness said that he considered the green mold on the refrigerated beef as one of the natural consequences of cold storage. It formed simply a film over the meat. He believed that of all the fresh meat issued to his command, that only one quarter beef was unsound.

Heard No Complaints. General Chaffee said he did not consider the canned roast beef as roast beef. It was his opinion that it was "steamed meat. If there was any complaint against the unsoundness of this meat it was not brought to his attention He never heard any commendation of this meat on the part of the troops. He had found that the canned roast beef was had found that the canned roast beef was very much improved by being put in cold storage, so that the liquid was solidified. He had never heard of the issue of canned roast beef to American troops before the late war. It may have been on the shelves of the commissary depots for ten years let he obtained his first personal knowledge of this part of the ration during the late of this part of the ration during the late campaign. He thought that if canned corned beef was nutritive canned roast beef was also nutritive. In other operations of the American army fresh beef had been supplied on the hoof or on the block. General Chaffee said although it would have been practicable to have landed beef cattle with the army of invasion, it would not have been justifiable. He recited the ot have been justifiable. He recited the lifficulties that would have had to be met and overcome in accomplishing a propo-sition of this character. He gave it as his opinion that had the American troops made an attempt to land beef cattle 50 per cent of them would have been lost. It would have been very difficult to have herded them, because of the nature of the coun-

There was the best evidence this morning not only of heavy Plower buying in his specialties but of Morgan buying as well. Activity in the stocks generally manipulated by Mr. Keene was also apparent. The people who watch for the leaders in the market asserted that the appearances of the buying this morning were the best that it has had since Friday. They predicted a continuance of an advance well started in the first hour and a half and expected higher prices at the advance well started in the first hour and a half and expected higher prices at the close. The course of the morning was a high opening, a point more or less above last night's close, a slight recession, and then a good advance again. Have you read the advices of the biggest brokers in the Street since Friday? Has one firm advised the purchase of stocks but ones? Wait until the stocks are back to their old high prices, and higher. THEN they will tell you to buy them. They will tell you to buy B. R. T. at 160 and F. S. Cio. at 26, for these prices will be reached by both stocks. Now they tell you to "go slow," be "conservative," and require 20 points margin. When you OFGHT to go slow and put 20 points on all purchases they will let you trade as you please. If there is ever a time when a trader can be reckless with safety and "phinge," it is after such a break as the market had Friday, and then, too, is the time when the brokers should beswilling to carry stocks on reasonable margins, for then is the time it is safe to do so.
